Psychology and Economics Economics 2030 Spring 2019

David Laibson Andrei Shleifer

Course Information

Course Overview: This course studies the ways that economic and psychological factors jointly influence behavior. We will analyze choices that economic actors make in the lab and in the field and we will explain these choices with economic models. We will enrich the standard economic model by incorporating psychological mechanisms, including limited rationality and limited self-control. Applications that we study will include salience, inference, strategic behavior, consumption, savings, and persuasion. This course is intended for students interested in research. The course will use the standard mathematical and empirical methods employed in economic research.

Meeting time and location: Wednesdays 3-5:45. Harvard Hall 103.

Instructors:

- David Laibson
Littauer M-12, dlaibson@harvard.edu, 6-3402
Office hours: email edepuy@fas.harvard.edu for an appointment
- Andrei Shleifer
Littauer M-9, ashleifer@harvard.edu, 5-5046
Office hours: email michael_oneil@fas.harvard.edu for an appointment
- Giorgio Saponaro

Section:
Office Hours: TBD

Course web site: <https://canvas.harvard.edu/courses/47477> Syllabus, problem sets, problem set solutions, readings, and handouts will be available on the course web site.

Prerequisites: graduate level coursework in statistics, game theory, microeconomic theory, dynamic optimization. Please talk to us if you have doubts about your background.

Collapsed Course Outline:

January 30	Introduction and Methodology (David)
February 6	Prospect Theory (Andrei)
February 13	Salience Theory (Andrei and Nicola Gennaioli)
February 20	Heuristics and Biases / Stereotypes (Andrei and Katie Coffman)
February 27	Errors in Probabilistic Reasoning and Judgment Biases (Daniel J. Benjamin)
March 6	Mental Accounting (Jesse Shapiro)
March 13	Advertising and Persuasion (Andrei and Josh Schwartzstein)
March 20	Spring Break
March 27	Intertemporal Choice Theory (David)
April 3	Modeling and Measuring Attention: From Micro to Macro (Xavier Gabaix)
April 10	Intertemporal Choice Empirics (David)
April 17	Household Finance and Choice Architecture (David) April
24	Behavioral Mechanism Design and Paternalism (David)
May 1	Biosocial Science: Neuroeconomics and Genoeconomics (David)

Grading: Grades will be calculated from two weighted components: problem sets (1/4), and final exam (3/4). Students who have taken 2010a/b and 2010c/d (or are currently taking these course) may also opt into a paper option that replaces the final exam. In this case, the paper deadline is set by you, but it may be no later than September 1. Tell Emily Sall this deadline by March 1.

Problem Sets: We will assign 6 problem sets over the course of the semester.

Policy on Lateness: Late problem sets will receive half credit.

Student collaboration: Students may collaborate on problem sets, but they should acknowledge their collaborators and describe the extent of their collaboration at the top of the relevant assignments. While collaboration is allowed, directly copying someone else's work is not. Problem sets may be discussed, but they should be written up independently. Copying someone else's work can result in a requirement to withdraw from the University.

Recommended texts: You should buy the texts that match your specific research interests. Take special note of the two-volume Handbook of Behavioral Economics edited by Bernheim, Dellavigna, and Laibson (2018, 2019), which is on sale at the COOP.
